“In 2011 there are plenty of black fruit aromas, with some notes of peat and graphite, somehow also black, but with some violet and even red berry notes fighting to surface with plenty of spices and some notes of cigar box and incense. The palate is medium to full-bodied with ripe, round tannins, a soft, velvety texture and a nice thread of acidity with spice flavors from the oak...Give it a little more time to integrate the creamy oak and it should come into its own nicely.”
